Active Kids = Healthier Kids

When your youngster gets plenty of physical activity, she not only will be healthier, she’ll also be more likely to stay focused and behave well in school. Encourage your child to get at least an hour of exercise a day with these fun games and activities.

Zigzag hopscotch
Have your youngster use sidewalk chalk to draw a staircase-shaped hopscotch board on a sidewalk, driveway, or blacktop. To play, she should hop on one foot from start to finish, landing on one square at a time. If she makes it without putting her other foot down, she writes her initials in any square. On your turn, you must hop over the square she initialed. If you get to the end, you initial any empty square. Keep taking turns, hopping only on empty squares or ones with your own initials, until every square is claimed or no one can hop across. The player with the most initials wins.

Kick and block
Form a garden hose into a large circle, and place a soccer ball in the center. Two players stand in the circle. One person is the “kicker,” and the other is the “blocker.” The kicker attempts to kick the ball out of the circle—kicking in the direction of the blocker. The blocker uses his feet to try to keep the ball in. When the ball goes out of the circle, swap roles, and play again.

Fish or fowl
You can play this game on sidewalks or grass. One player is the caller. If the caller names a fish (bass, perch, tuna), the other players jump backward. If she names a bird (robin, woodpecker, seagull), players jump forward. The caller keeps naming fish or fowl, trying to trick the jumpers. If you jump in the wrong direction, you’re out. The last person in the game becomes the new caller. Play until everyone has had a turn being the caller.

Idea:
Move the game outdoors, and hide pennies in bushes, under rocks, or in sidewalk cracks.

Slow-motion race
When you take a walk, try this race where the slowpoke wins. Challenge your family to walk in slow-motion from one end of a block to the other. Your children will build balance and muscle control as they try to make each step last as long as possible. There’s only one rule to follow: Everyone must keep moving—no stopping allowed. The last person to reach the end wins.

Penny hunt
Ask your youngster to count out 15 pennies. Then, have her cover her eyes while you hide them around the house. Set a timer for two minutes, and let her race to find the pennies before the buzzer rings. Next game, she can hide the pennies, and you hunt. Help each other find the pennies by saying “You’re hot” when someone gets close to a hiding place and “You’re cold” if she’s moving away from one. Idea: Move the game outdoors, and hide pennies in bushes, under rocks, or in sidewalk cracks.
Beanbag tag
The object of this game is to tag the other person’s feet with a beanbag. Choose an open space with a wood or tile floor, such as a hall or basement. Have your child stand at one end of the room while you stand at the other. Now, take turns sliding the beanbag across the floor at the other person’s feet. Try to dodge the beanbag by jumping over it. Score a point each time you tag your opponent with the beanbag. The first one to score 10 points wins. Variation: To make the game more challenging, slide the beanbags toward each other’s feet at the same time.

This way or that
There are lots of ways to cross a playground. Let your youngster start this game by saying, “Come across the playground like this…” and then crossing in a funny way (spinning like a top, walking on her heels). All the other players must cross in the same way. Then, the next leader says, “No, no, no. Come across like this…” and leads players across the playground a different way, perhaps walking sideways. How many ways can everyone think of?

Fitness island
Turn a sidewalk or driveway into an island. With sidewalk chalk, your child can draw a landscape full of fitness challenges. He might create a stream, a bridge, and stepping-stones, for instance. Then, he can pretend to wade through the stream, walk heel-to-toe on the narrow bridge, and jump from stepping-stone to stepping-stone across a make-believe swamp. When he finishes, it’s your turn to take the island challenge.

Rainbow walk
Walk laps up and down a shopping strip or around a mall until you’ve spotted one item for every color of the rainbow. For example, you may find red shoes, an orange safety cone, a yellow sundress, green shampoo, blue jeans, indigo earrings, and a violet rug. Or take a rainbow walk in the neighborhood, and see who can find a red flag on a mailbox, an orange flower, and so on.

Five-minute ideas
Here are everyday ideas for short bursts of activity.

Inside
• Put on music, and lip-sync while doing your best dance moves.
• Play with a pet.
• Do a “routine” like five forward rolls, five push-ups, and five backward rolls.
• Stand in a line, and have each person put his hands on the shoulders of the person in front of him. See how fast you can snake your way through the house without breaking the chain.

Outside
• Practice basketball free throws.
• Play a game of catch.
• Take turns throwing a Frisbee and measuring the distance you tossed it.
• Pick a starting point and a finish line. Have a race.

Editor’s Note: Nutrition Nuggets™ is reviewed by a registered dietitian. Consult a physician before beginning any major change in diet or exercise.